The Campus Trilogy: Changing Places; Small World; Nice ...

Changing Places is the first of David Lodge's "Campus" series, this one being set in 1969 and published in 1975. The sexual revolution, Vietnam, student sit-ins and smoking "pot" are all highly topical themes; the novel is pure "psychedelic '60's." The style is redolent of Lodge's dry, sardonic humour, so it is very entertaining to read.

Changing Places by David Lodge - Goodreads

CHANGING PLACES is aptly named, since this campus novel and satire shows two professors, who are opposites in almost every respect, assuming each other's faculty positions in an exchange program and then acquiring loving roles in each other's family and marriage.

Even so, Lodge's satire eventually migrates to the zone of total improbability, where it devolves into farce. Then, his narrative seems clever but not especially insightful. In CHANGING PLACES, Lodge, the literary man, sometimes winks at his readers. At one point, for example, the spouses are exchanging letters.
