The first pond ledge is typically 6 to 10 inches deep and should be dug around the perimeter of the entire pond. Remember, this ledge should be covered in gravel, so a ledge that is 6 inches deep will become a 4-inch-deep ledge after the gravel is installed. Ledges can vary according to their usage, but they do not have to be perfect.

Another group thinks "deep" means "insight for life." Make a verse of Scripture apply directly to what I do tomorrow. "Deep" means "applied well," and transformation (rather than information) is the goal. I sympathize with anyone seeking "life transformation" in Bible study. Surely we don't want people looking in the mirror of God's Word and ...

In order to reach a nice stable temperature, you need to dig down at least 10 feet. In sandy, loamy soils you may need to go a little deeper than that to get the right temperature. Build your shelves and platforms out of wood, as it doesn't conduct heat and cold nearly like metal does. This helps maintain steady temperatures.
