Danina Petroskova was Granny Dan. The year was 1902. Danina, at the age of seven, went to a ballet school in St. Petersburg Russia. A war, an extraordinary man, and a devastating illness altered the course of her life. I so love Steel's writing. She goes deep into the character and brings the person alive. It's as though I knew Granny Dan.

She was my grandmother, Granny Dan, the only grandmother in town with her own roller skates. She wore them proudly with one of her plain little black dresses, and when she went downtown, particularly to the bank, she always wore a hat and gloves, her favorite earrings, and looked as though she were going to do something important.

She was the cherished grandmother who sang songs in Russian, loved to roller-skate, and spoke little of her past. But when Granny Dan died, all that remained was a box wrapped in brown paper, tied with string. Inside, an old pair of satin toe shoes, a gold locket, and a stack of letters tied with ribbon.
