The first real step in your negotiation process is what most call the First Pencil. If you want the customer to pay cash your first pencil will be a cash number. If you want them to finance the car your first pencil will be a retail term and monthly payment amount and if you want them to lease the car, then your first pencil should be a lease.

First Pencil - What to Offer the Customer

First pencil: This is the opening offer from the sales manager, usually written onto the four-square worksheet, so-called because it is highly negotiable, i.e. written in pencil, not ink.
